What a difference full raid nights make - After the headache of zoning problems on Tuesday, and being locked out altogether on Wednesday, we finally got a solid two nights Thursday and Sunday in Ulduar. Within those two days we downed seven new bosses, after only getting time enough for Flame Leviathan on night one. We still managed to pull out a server first, killing Ignis the Furnace Master, and completing the Heroic: The Siege of Ulduar achievement (217th US - WoWProgress.com). The Antechamber quickly followed suit and we moved on to kill Hodir within the Keepers before we called it a night. Everyone did an outstanding job this week, and we thank everyone for being devoted and patient during the unraidable nights of technical difficulties on the server. Here are the killshots you all have earned.

I can't imagine the remaining bosses will put up much of a fight against your hard work, and I can't wait to see our performance against the hard modes that lie ahead. Great job everyone, lets continue the success.- Sane
